

Exhibit: Trauma, healing and hope

Invitation to States Parties to display this exhibit

What happens in the aftermath of mass crimes? How do people survive, heal and find hope? Through the real stories featured in this exhibit, follow the path from the moment trauma occurs, including the crimes and their aftermath, living in insecurity, dealing with loss, and steps taken towards healing and hope, including justice and reconciliation.

This exhibit features 4 ICC videos and 51 photos by award-winning photographer Marcus Bleasdale, who has spent the past 20 years working with National Geographic, Human Rights Watch and others, documenting human rights abuses in many countries where the International Criminal Court (ICC) investigates.

The digital exhibit will also be launched and featured on the ICC website and social media platforms as of 17 July, Day of International Criminal Justice and 20th anniversary of the ICC Rome Statute.

Display this exhibit in your home country as part of our joint 20th anniversary campaign. Together, we can build a #morejustworld.
